P & H plans bond issue for capital projects

BY D.C. HARVILL

By using a special financing technique, the Hancock County Port and Harbor Commission hopes to pay for projects at Port Bienville for which funding might otherwise be difficult to obtain or nonexistent.

At its regular meeting Monday, the commission authorized its Executive Director Harold "Buz" Olsen and attorney Robert Genin to continue with plans to exercise its option of issuing revenue bonds.

Projects that possibly will be funded by the bond issue include a railroad car washing facility, a bulkhead for a new bulk-loading terminal, a warehouse at the port's ship terminal and two industrial buildings, totalling nearly $1 million.

The two buildings would be constructed for industries which may locate at the Port Bienville, the names of which the commission could not release because they have not yet signed agreements.

Under law, as a government agency, the commission can issue bonds to finance capital improvement projects.

Revenue bonds do not require an increase in taxes but call for the commission to pledge the revenue received from the projects to insure the bonds' payment, according to Port and Harbor Executive Director Harold "Buz" Olsen.

By utilizing revenue bonds, the commission will not have to draw on its cash reserves to finance the projects, Olsen said.

"By doing this, we can save our money until we have projects for which we have no choice but to use our money. It is just a good, sound economic development tool," he said.

After issuance, the bonds are purchased by banks through a bidding process and are sold to

Child's injury prompts tests of crossing safety at US-90 and Dunbar

BY DENA BISNETTE

In the wake of an accident that injured a 10-year-old North Bay Elementary student Monday afternoon, the Bay St. Louis Police Department has conducted safety tests at the US-90 crossing at Dunbar Avenue.

Officer David Sellier, who investigated the accident, said he had left the crossing only a few minutes before Jennifer Wilkinson was hit by a car as she tried to cross the highway with her eight-year-old brother Charles.

The child suffered bruises, a concussion and a broken collarbone. After being taken to Hancock Medical Center by Mobile Medic Ambulance Service, she was transferred to Garden Park Hospital, where she was scheduled for release Wednesday.

Sellier said that Scott Carter, the officer posted at the school as children leave in the afternoon, usually watches for stragglers as he returns to US-90 and radios the officer at the crossing to stay late if he sees any children who are still walking.

Sellier said Carter did not see Wilkinson and her brother because they were not on the street. They had stopped at a house along the way to help a friend repair a bicycle.

The children crossed at about 3:28 p.m., probably only a few seconds before People's Federal employees called the police department, Sellier stated.

He said Wilkinson, daughter of Linda Veglia, was struck by a vehicle driven by 44-year-old Phillip Neal of Long Beach. The younger child was not hit.

There are no charges against the driver in the incident. Sellier said skid marks examined during accident reconstruction showed that Neal had attempted to stop as he approached the intersection, but skidded through it.

The officer said the police department normally stations one officer at the school, and one at the crossing until 3:30 p.m.

Tests conducted Tuesday and Wednesday using two children of the same ages as those in the accident indicate that it takes students about six minutes to walk from North Bay to the highway. The average time for the children to cross the highway was 19.2 seconds.

Children walking in groups were timed Wednesday and officers found that the last children usually cross through the intersection at about 3:09, a little more than 10 minutes before the officer leaves.

Sellier checked with a State Highway Department supervisor, Don Milligan, who verified that the crossing lights work properly. The "Walk" sign stays on for seven seconds, then the "Don't Walk" sign flashes for 25 seconds, giving the child a total of 32 seconds to get across the highway.

Although tests indicated that the students have adequate time to cross while a police officer is posted at the highway, the department asked for the cooperation of North Bay Principal Rodney Fisher in cautioning the children about crossing US-90.

Fisher addressed all of the children who walk or ride bicycles regarding safety and is dismissing them at the 2:55 bell, five minutes earlier than students who ride buses.

Assisting the Bay St. Louis police department at the scene in addition to Mobile Medic were the Bay St. Louis Fire Department and some Hancock Medical Center employees who saw the accident and stopped to provide assistance.

Attorney finds county has no authorization to move sunken boats

BY DENA BISNETTE

The Hancock County Board of Supervisors apparently has no authority to remove sunken boats except in county-owned waterways.

The previous board of supervisors tried to find out who could move the boats, which clog some of the local canals, bayous and boat launch areas. The present board has obtained a state attorney general's opinion and has found that not much has changed.

Who can move the boat still seems to depend on who owns the waterway, Board Attorney

Gerald Gex told the supervisors Wednesday morning, explaining that public funds can not be used for that purpose unless they block county-owned channels.

According to Beat Four Supervisor Wilmer Seymour, the board's concern is partially due to the problems being caused by a sunken boat at the Washington Street pier. The boat is blocking the main outlet for shrimpers.

According to the opinion, which was signed by Special Assistant Attorney General Larry J. Stroud, there is "no general statutory authority for the board to remove derelict vessels."

"Section 51-1-5 authorizes any person to remove obstructions from navigable streams, which are defined in Sections 1-3-31 and 51-1-1. However, we do not believe that Section 51-1-5 authorizes expenditure of county funds for this purpose."

"The county could remove vessels under the salvage statutes, sections 89-17-1 through 89-17-5 when the vessel is over or on the bed of a stream, or part thereof owned by the county."

"This is authorized for any Boats—Page 3A

Bay saves $1 million with early loan payoff

BY D.C. HARVILL

Bay St. Louis officials were able to save the city approximately $1 million due to a federal program that allowed them to pay off a $600,000 loan for $434,574.

Taking advantage of a discount repurchase program instituted by the Farmers Home Administration to reduce the number of outstanding government loans, the city saved $1.1 million dollars in interest it would have paid over the 20 year period of the loan, according to Mayor Victor Frankiewicz Jr.

Interest on the loan would have been $60,000 per year, at a rate of 7.75 percent, Frankiewicz said.

By paying off the loan before the Thursday deadline, the city also saved $135,000 in principal payments on the loan which was made September 1988 for use on sewerage improvement projects.

In order to payoff the loan before the deadline, the city utilized internal loans, borrowing money from municipal funds which, by law, can only be used for certain purposes. The Bay—Page 3A

A thought for meditation from our pastor Father Lambert Stack, ST.

Man may make plans in his heart, but what the tongue utters is from the Lord. All the ways of the man may be pure in his own eyes, but it is the Lord who proves the spirit. Entrust your work to the Lord, and your plans will succeed. In his mind a man plans his course, but the Lord directs his steps.

A Tribute

In Memory of Jerry Carver

Everyone who knew Jerry Carver is sure missing him. I know I am.

For over 20 years I have gone to Bayou Caddy and I always saw Jerry in the bayou fishing.

He never gave up fishing whether the fish were biting or not, and he was always catching fish bait or making coffee on Marshal Strong's boat where he worked.

He was always giving someone free coffee. Ask Joe Whyman, he knows. He drank many a cup of coffee with Jerry over the years.

Jerry Carver was like a son to me. The thing I remember most about him is Jerry taking four to six months to hand-carve out of wood three fish around a stump with a shad rig fishing hook in one of the fish's mouth. It's the most beautiful piece of carving I have ever seen.

I will always say a prayer and think of Jerry when I look at his carving he made for me.

I think Marshal Strong and Jerry worked together for 30 to 35 years.

Last week Marshal went out oystering for the first time without Jerry. He said he never knew how much work Jerry did on the boat until this week when he went out by himself on his boat.

All the boys who went fishing with him surely must miss him.

The last wood carving Jerry made was the Virgin Mary. It was beautiful. He made it for his aunt. He gave this carving to his aunt for Christmas 1988.

Jerry, wherever you are, we hope you are enjoying your fishing. We know you took your fishing rod with you.

We all miss you, Jerry. Mel Villere Waveland

Historic preservation grants announced by Lott, Cochran

U. S. Senators Thad Cochran and Trent Lott announced that two grants totaling over $440,000 have been awarded for historic preservation programs in Mississippi.

The two Senators said the Department of Interior's National Park Service was making the funds available to the Mississippi Department of Archives and History for historic preservation work in the state during FY 1989.

The Park Service said one grant, for $214,912, would be matched by an equal sum of state and local money or in-kind contributions, while another, for $225,444, would be matched by $96,621 in state and local support.

Funds will enable to state agency to proceed with its program to survey and protect architectural, cultural and historic heritage.

"We are pleased the state is receiving these federal funds to assist in its historic preservation work," the two senators said.

Chancery Court seat sought by Randall

Gulfport attorney Bobby Joe Randall has announced his candidacy for the 8th Chancery Court District of Mississippi, Place 2, serving Harrison, Hancock and Stone counties. He will oppose Jason H. Floyd Jr. of Pass Christian in the April 4 Primary.

He later attended Perkinston Junior College on an athletic scholarship. After graduation from Perkinston, he completed his studies for admission to the Bar, attending the University of Southern Mississippi and the University of Mississippi and graduated from the Jackson School of Law with a juris doctorate, practicing law as a sole practitioner.

He has been married to the former Phyllis LaRue Alfonso and they have three sons.

He holds now or has held membership in the following: Mississippi Trial Lawyers Association, American Bar Association, Harrison County Bar Association, Mississippi State Bar Association, Gulfport Masonic Lodge No. 422, Mississippi Gulf Coast Chapter of the Foundation of National Football Hall of Fame, Italian-American Cultural Society, Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, and is a member of St. Peter By-the-Sea Episcopal Church and also attends St. Mark Episcopal Church. served as temporary city prosecutor for the City of Gulfport.

BOBBY JOE RANDALL

He has continued his legal education through the University of Mississippi CLE studying International Law at Cambridge University, Downing College in England in 1985 and at Trinity College, Dublin, Ireland in 1988.

"We have one law of the land which derives its authority from the people. Chancery Court evolved to the end that all issues, no matter their number or complexity, could be heard and disposed. Decisions by the judge should be made after a finding of fact and application and interpretation of the law affecting the case. The parties and lawyers expect right decisions, not hasty ones, after solemn, impartial, fair and sober reflection by the judge. I intend to see that they get it," he said.

On Patrol

David Michael Flair, 19, of DeSoto Street, BaySide Park, was also arrested Monday. He is charged with sale of a controlled substance and bond was set at $5,000.

Dorn stated that the drug arrests are part of a cooperative effort by his department and the Hancock County Sheriff's Department to reduce drug-related crime in the area.

In addition, Waveland officers arrested two adults and detained several juveniles in two burglary cases and a vandalism incident.

Dorn said Roy James DeSalvo of 222 St. Charles Street, Bay St. Louis, was arrested Friday on two counts of burglary of a dwelling.

He remained in jail on $10,000 bond Wednesday, awaiting a preliminary hearing today.

A 17-year-old juvenile also involved in the incident has been turned over to Youth Court authorities, Dorn said.

Also on Friday, James Matthew Stone, 19, 109 Pine Street, Waveland, was arrested and charged with seven counts of burglary of a dwelling.

He remained in jail on $5,000 bond Wednesday, awaiting a preliminary hearing today.

Dorn said when Stone was arrested, police also charged a 14-year-old juvenile with seven counts of burglary of a dwelling and one count of grand larceny. The juvenile has been turned over to Youth Court.

Dorn said a second juvenile is still being sought in the case.

In the vandalism incident, police detained four juveniles Sunday after they allegedly broke into a house and damaged windows, overturned furniture and spray-painted profanity in the building.

The four, which included one 15-year-old, two 14-year-olds and a 12-year-old, were all turned over to Youth Court authorities, Dorn said.

By loaning money back and forth with itself, the city doesn't have to pay costly financing charges, the mayor said.

"The effects of this savings will not be felt immediately by the citizens of the city but it will make a big difference down the road. This will bring the total to approximately $2 million in debt we've put to rest during this administration," Frankiewicz said.

Gex added that the matter might be a suitable topic for one of the board's workshop meetings, which are designed for research and discussion only with formal action delayed until the next officially scheduled meeting.

The board plans to contact Bureau of Marine Resources and possibly the U.S. Coast Guard regarding the sunken boat at the pier.

Another possibility is finding a diver who would be willing to check the sunken vessel for identification numbers, which would help the board determine who owns the boat. Board members feel that if the owner can be contacted, he might wish to consider salvaging the boat.

The board meets again at 9 a.m. Feb. 28 in the upstairs boardroom of the Hancock County Courthouse.

"QUOTABLE QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

The operation of the Hancock County Food Pantry continues and is a vital part of our community. Volunteers are on hand every morning five days a week to offer a helping hand to deserving folks.

The volunteers come from many of the community's churches and appear to enjoy helping others who are in need.

Mrs. Evelyn Johnson, who along with several others has been responsible for the organization, tells me the Food Pantry is now in need of a three-drawer file cabinet.

We know there were responses for other objects needed along the way and there was always someone supplying the need.

If you have a file cabinet you no longer need and want to donate it to a very worthy cause, give the Food Pantry a call at 467-2790. They are open from 9 a.m. to noon Monday through Friday.

Donations from church groups, industries, businesses, students, families and individuals, along with operation volunteers at the Hancock County Food Pantry, all should be commended for a job well done.

I had the opportunity of getting together with a couple of former Sea Coast Echo associates at a meeting in Atlanta last week.

Larry Nash, a former publisher at the Echo is now publisher of a newspaper in Sparta, Tenn., and Jerry Whittle who was a former managing editor, is publisher of a paper in Thompson, Ga.

I had a good time in conversations with both recalling events which took place during their stay at the Echo some dozen or so years ago.

Both said to tell all of their friends hello. Nash is still as thin as ever, and Jerry, well, he is losing weight.

I will never forget the time the escaped prisoners from the Hancock County Jail went through Nash's apartment before they were captured. One was shot prior to being captured not too far from his apartment.

I know it was cool when I left home on Wednesday morning, but not as cold as it was in Georgia. My overcoat came in handy.

We are glad to see what we consider the rightful place for the painting which was unveiled at the new Bay St. Louis Post Office Tuesday.

The 1938 painting by late-Coast artist Louis Reynaud was done under the Works Progress Administration, (WPA) and was a featured attraction at the downtown post office. There were questions as to whether it would be retained with the move.

We appreciate the United States Postal Service's Memphis District Office efforts in financing the move and restoration of the work of art. Many people in this area will be grateful for years to come.

On the local scene, Postmaster Tom Hill and Waveland resident Mrs. Nancy Gex, along with several others, are also to be commended for their help.

There were many folks who visited the post office during Open House, and some seemed to be surprised at the magnitude of the facility.

Phyllis Hudson, a New Orleans art conservator, conducted the relocation and restoration of the mural depicting a fishing scene.

The restoration really brings the mural to life, and Hudson did a tremendous job preserving the work of art.

During the 1930s projects of many types were performed through WPA funding. I know of drainage ditches and can even remember construction of one across the street from my home in Waveland, which is still in use today.

While on the subject of art, Mr. Carl Baldenhofer, who teaches art at the Senior Citizens Center and the Civic Center in Waveland, presented an oil painting to the Hancock Medical Center.

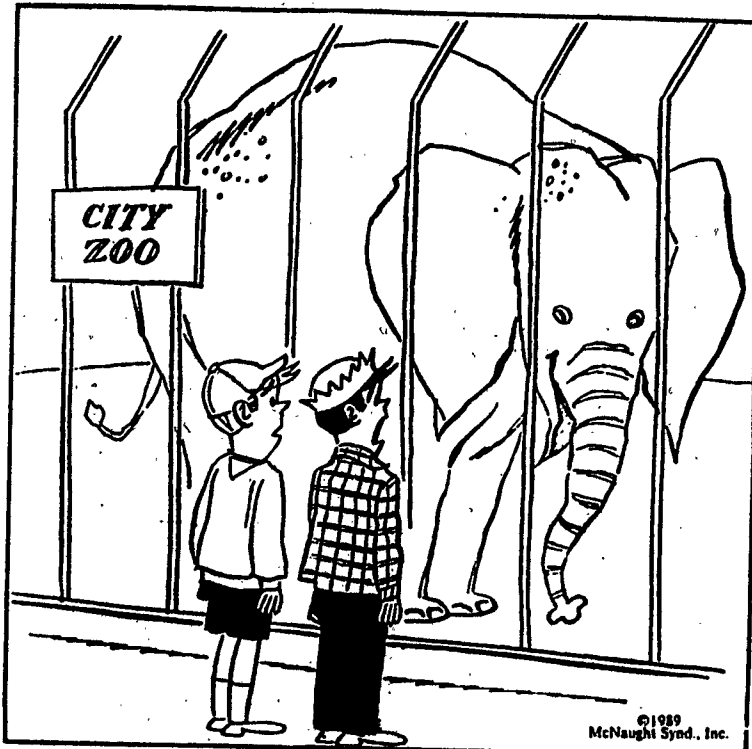

Mr. Carl has been active in art circles in Hancock County for years and is responsible for folks of all ages being involved in art in the community.

I have a painting of the old Woodman of the World building in my office. Mr. Carl presented it to us on behalf of the Senior Citizens when we moved to our present location some 11 years ago.

Baldenhofer's presentation of one of his original oil paintings to HMC was in appreciation for the encouragement his wife received during a recent stay at the hospital.

We know many organizations have also benefited from Mr. Carl's paintings in helping raise funds for special projects.

All we can say to Mr. Carl is—keep on painting and teaching.

"How would you like to have to wash behind those ears?"

EYES ON MISSISSIPPI

By Bill Minor

Former legislator Blass survives liberal label in return to state Capitol

There were poignant memories of far different times in the 1950s which raced through my mind the other day at the state Capitol when Gov. Ray Mabus announced he was appointing Joel Blass to the state Supreme Court.

In a way, it was a triumphant return of Blass to that building where over 30 years before he had to endure the abuse of angry racists in the Mississippi House of Representatives for his moderation.

Blass, now 71, is regarded as one of the state's ablest lawyers. Certainly he had to have the highest professional respect of his peers to be as Mabus said, "head and shoulders above" five lawyers recommended by the judicial nominating committee.

But there was a time when Blass was a State Representative from Stone County that powerful segregationist forces sought to either put an end to his political career or make it as miserable as possible.

Blass had been one of a brave band of legislators who in 1955 had opposed a constitutional amendment pushed through by powerful House Speaker Walter Sillers to give the Legislature power to abolish the public school system in the event of integration.

Not only had Blass fought the measure in the legislative debate, but he became one of a handful of public school advocates who went around the state making speeches against ratification of the amendment.

This was the year when the segregationist white Citizens Council was first flexing its muscle. It put out an "enemies list" of those who were publicly opposing the school abolition amendment. Blass' name was listed with such hated organizations as the NAACP and the ACLU as part of the enemies of the state.

With the segregationist fervor of the times, the school abolition amendment won adoption, but a promise was extracted from Sillers that he did not think it would ever have to be implemented.

The Citizens Council did not let Blass alone. They tried to defeat him for re-election that year, sending tale-carriers out around Stone County implying that Blass was an integrationist, and besides that, he was also a Catholic.

"Even though only a small percentage of the white people agreed with what I was doing, they voted for me. I got something over 70 percent of the vote," Blass recalls.

Blass became a key player in another monumental legislative struggle—Gov. J. P. Coleman's historic fight for a constitutional convention in 1957.

Already branded a "Colemanite" by the legislative forces arrayed with Speaker Sillers against a constitutional convention, Blass became Coleman's unofficial floor leader for the convention measure in the House during the 1957 special legislative session.

However, the strong-willed Coleman had a way of trying to run the whole show himself, and he more or less took personal command. When the convention bill failed in the House by three votes, it was the exact head count which Blass had earlier told Coleman that was needed to pass the bill.

"If we could have gotten a constitutional convention back then, I think we would be much further down the road to progress in this state than we are now," Blass says. "But it came at the wrong time, because tensions were too high after Brown Vs. Board of Education (the historic school desegregation decision of 1954) and people were just afraid."

Blass decided to drop out of the Legislature in 1960 because he felt he couldn't support his growing family without devoting more time to his law practice.

He was lured by then Dean Joshua Morse to teach at the Ole Miss law school in 1965 to 1971, during the era when Morse was accused by critics of importing too many young professors from Yale University.

"It was ironic that the Yale kids thought I was a right winger, and back home in Stone County they thought I was some kind of wild-eyed radical," Blass recalls.

Politically, Blass had always supported his old legislative colleague, William Winter whenever Winter ran for governor. But in 1979, when Winter faced off with Republican Gil Carmichael, Blass explained to Winter he had to vote for Carmichael, because Gil is his cousin.

Where does he stand philosophically today? Some think Blass has become more conservative in his later years. But Blass, who is giving up a lucrative law practice in Gulfport to go on the court, says: "I don't think I'm either a liberal or a conservative."

HOMETOWN NEWS

From The Capitol City

By Mississippi Reporting Service

The state's three charity hospitals should be closed, the House of Representatives declared this week.

Rep. J. P. Compretta joined a majority in voting to close the hospitals in Vicksburg, Laurel and Meridian.

The $7 million saved by closing the hospitals will allow the state to receive an additional $28 million in federal money to expand the state Medicaid program. The vote is a victory for Gov. Ray Mabus, who made the closings part of his legislative agenda.

In the Senate, Sen. Gene Taylor was in the majority in voting against allowing the state department of education to temporarily take over operation of a school district that loses its accreditation. A variety of significant bills were passed as the legislature moved past the deadline for passing non-revenue bills.

The House turned down a state lottery, while the Senate defeated a plan to allow gambling at proposed greyhound tracks in five counties.

The two votes, the first time legislators elected in 1987 have had a chance to express their wishes on the issue, make passage of legalized gambling unlikely before 1992.

Business forces which had been pushing tort reform got part of what they had been asking for. The state's six-year statute of limitations for filing civil lawsuits, one of the longest in the nation, was reduced to three years after an injury occurs.

The tort reform measure does not include a cap on economic damages or a limit on punitive damages. An earlier Senate-passed bill reduces the time limit for filing lawsuits from six to two years.

The state's child abuse laws were stiffened by the House, HOMETOWN PAGE 5A

Family-oriented sport of bowling rediscovered

Dear Editor,
Sunday I rediscovered a good, clean sport the whole family can enjoy together.

It was bowling! After 45 years I lifted a 12-pound ball and found that as old as I am, I still could swing it.

This complex in Gulfport had 24 lanes, video games, snack bar, baby sitting room and television.

While there I saw people my age, young-marrieds, teenagers and younger children. All seemed to enjoy themselves. No one was rowdy, or out of line.

Everyone was friendly and polite.

I was reminded of an old saying, "The family that plays together, stays together."

Would it not be wonderful if we had such a bowling complex in Bay St. Louis or Waveland?

For the first time in two years I fell asleep Sunday night without taking a sleeping aid. I cannot wait until next Sunday.

Sincerely,
Nina S. Garcia

Eleventh graders sought to view Coast Guard Academy video

Dear Editor,
This letter is intended to acquaint you with a project which is sponsored by the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary to assist worthy high school students to attend the United States Coast Guard Academy at New London, Conn.

While the Coast Guard Academy is known to everyone, it possesses two unique features which are not so widely understood. One—it is the only one of the national service academies where admission is through competitive examination only and not by congressional appointment. Two—there is no geographical quota on appointments.

The project mentioned above involves a plan whereby the members of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary sponsor carefully selected high school juniors to attend a five-day summer visit at the academy.

This program is known as "AIM" or Academy Introduction Mission. Expenses in connection with the trip are assumed by the auxiliary (transportation to and from will be a joint obligation).

I would appreciate the opportunity of discussing this program with 11th graders to provide them with the details of the project. We are also interested in presenting to all students the advantages and opportunities provided by the academy, leading to a career as a commissioned officer in the Coast Guard. AIM is a stepping stone.

On Feb. 19 at 2 p.m. at the home of Mrs. Lois Abrams, 663 Abui Street, Diamondhead, 255-1864, a video entitled "The Life of a Plebe," will be shown. Any interested students and their parents will be welcome. Lois S. Abrams

At Your Service

By Dena Bisnette

Beginning this month, The Sea Coast Echo will present a new column, "At Your Service." "At Your Service" is designed to provide information on the services which can be obtained through the area's government entities and where to go to get them.

Since 1982, I have reported mostly on city and county governments with occasional forays into state-level matters, and the one thing I have noticed most is that the public does not understand the variety of services available and which office supplies which service.

I cannot count the number of times that I have been stopped in the foyers of courthouses on a property deed...or a marriage license...or a food stamp application...The list goes on.

As a graduate student at University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park, I have studied political science and criminal justice, but I have so far found only one course which attempts to explain the workings of local government in terms the public understands.

By necessity, that course was very generalized; this column will present some of the same topics but will be specific to Hancock County.

Today's "At Your Service" will serve as an introduction to the types of local entities here in Hancock County. Future columns will deal with specific questions that will sometimes be chosen at random but in some cases will be determined by events and deadlines involving the county, Bay St. Louis and Waveland.

Also, it is important to remember that government is a constantly changing animal. Changes are prompted by many factors—legislation, budgets and growth are only a few.

With the assistance of local officials, we at The Sea Coast Echo hope to keep you informed of new developments as well as everyday needs with which your city and county can assist you.

Hancock County is governed by a five-member board of supervisors who serve primarily as policy-setters and administrators.

One supervisor is still elected from each district, also known as a beat, but since the unit system of government took effect in 1987, county road and bridge revenues are pooled rather than being divided five ways. The board also decides how the county general fund, which supports day-to-day operations, will be used.

The county has various departments which oversee different services. Some examples include the tax assessor and collector's office, which handles property taxes, car tags and reappraisal; sheriff's department, which provides law enforcement; and the Circuit Court, Chancery Court and Justice Court, which handle various types of court matters in addition to other duties. There are other departments, like purchasing and bookkeeping, that deal less directly with the general public.

The City of Bay St. Louis has a mayor-council form of government with a full-time mayor and five part-time councilmen to determine city property.

The city is divided into four districts, which, like a supervisor's beat, have boundaries drawn in such a manner as to evenly divide the number of voters in the city. Each district has its own councilman, who must be a resident of that district.

A fifth councilman, called a councilman at large, may be a resident of any district and is elected by choice of all of the city's voters.

Waveland has a part-time mayor and four part-time aldermen who make policy for the city.

Both cities have various departments, although on a smaller scale than the county, which handles day-to-day matters.

Examples include the mayor's office, which handles administrative functions; utilities, which provides or oversees water, sewerage, gas and garbage collection; police and fire protection; and street maintenance.

There are three other political entities that are independent of the county and two cities but are in some ways intertwined with them. They include the Bay St. Louis-Waveland School Board, Hancock County School Board and Waveland Regional Wastewater Management District.

We hope we can make you more aware of these entities in future installments of "At Your Service."

which closed a legal loophole that has allowed suspected child abusers to escape felony prosecution.

The Senate came close to allowing the state department of education to temporarily take control of school districts that lose their accreditation. The bill is expected to be reconsidered later this session.

The Senate also narrowly turned down a bill that would have created a gaming commission to regulate non-profit bingo games. And it should still be illegal to sell liquor on election day, the House decided last week.

HOUSE

HB 728. Closes the three state charity hospitals in Vicksburg, Meridian and Laurel, and transfers the money to the state Medicaid program. It passed 68 to 52, with two absent. Compretta, yes.

HB 289. This bill is designed to protect nursing home residents and hospital patients from physical abuse. It passed 91 to 21 with three voting present and one absent. Compretta, yes.

HCR 95. This resolution would put a constitutional amendment on the ballot to allow voters to decide if they want a state-sanctioned lottery. It failed 55 to 64 with three absent. Compretta, yes.

HB 1171. This bill reduces the state's statute of limitations for filing a civil lawsuit from six to three years. It passed 111 to five with six absent. Compretta, yes.

HB 372. Allows retail establishments to sell liquor on election day. It passed, 62 to 52 with three voting present and five absent. The approval reversed a previous negative vote on the same issue last week. Compretta, yes.

SENATE

SB 2817. Would have established a state-run lottery. It failed, 25 to 24, because it required 30 votes for passage. Taylor, yes; Tate, no.

SB 2570. Would have allowed local option election to establish parimutuel betting on grayhound racing in five counties: Jackson, Hancock, Harrison, Warren and Marshall. It failed 16 to 35. Taylor, yes; Tate, no.

SB 2195. Would have allowed the state department of education to temporarily administer operations in a school district which has lost its accreditation. It failed 21 to 25 with six absent or not voting.

SB 2014. This bill would have established a state gaming control commission to regulate non-profit bingo games and consider taxation of cruise ships operating in the Gulf Coast. It failed 23 to 26 with three absent. Taylor, yes; Tate, no.

COOKING UP A STORM

By Katy McGuire
Caire

When French settlers from Canada's Acadia (Nova Scotia) found their way down to Louisiana's lush countryside, following their expulsion by the British so long ago, they added a new dimension to the cuisine of the area, entirely new, though closely related to the Creole cuisine developed earlier, when French settlers in New Orleans, far away from their usual spices, vegetables and meats, turned to local herbs and foods.

The people of New Orleans and surrounding parts of Louisiana called this 'Cajun' cooking, mispronouncing its French Acadian origins. The cooking, country-style, all-in-one-pot cooking of the early Acadians, a hospitable, friendly folk always eager to welcome an extra guest at table.

Today's Cajuns, as busy cooks as any others, still enjoy the long-cooking methods of their French ancestors, but, also, like others, have developed shortcuts, to suit today's busy times as in:

CAJUN PORK CHOPS

6 tender pork chops
1 Tbsp. butter or margarine
6 slices onion
6 green pepper rings
6 slices lemon
1 cup raw (uncooked) rice
Dashes (¼ tsp. if you insist on exact measurements, of pepper, cayenne)
Salt, if you must

2 cups tomato sauce (your own, or two 8-oz. cans)
Slices of lemon

4 cups water (or water and, say, half a cup of white wine)

And, at least for me, that inevitable generous dash of hot pepper sauce.

First of all, brown the chops on both sides in the butter or margarine, in a large skillet. I use my trusty large black iron skillet that's even older than I am, but use your electric skillet if you wish, or some other skillet, but there's nothing quite as special to me as my collection of iron skillets!

At any rate, and pardon the digression, top each pork chop with an onion slice and a pepper ring, then a lemon slice, then add the rice to the skillet. Combine all the remaining ingredients, and put into the skillet—I told you, you'd need a large skillet, didn't I?

Cover the skillet, and simmer over low heat for an hour or a bit more (depending upon whether you bought the center loin chops or did as I often do, bought the tougher chops. At any rate, be sure that the meat is tender to the touch of a fork. Just be sure to simmer the whole business until the liquid is absorbed and the rice is done. (Four to six servings.)

P.S. I have often cooked this ahead of time (to not quite the degree of 'doneness'—is that a word?) and then reheated, with good results. And, if the budget's somewhat on the downside (as whose isn't these days?) slice the chops into strips or chunks, add a bit more rice and sauce when you assemble the recipe, to make it go farther—or is it further? I'll have to look it up in the dictionary, won't I?

(Copyright, 1989, Katharine D. M. Caire)

P.P.S.—I've just looked that up in the dictionary, and I'm still confused—I looked again—it's further—to a greater degree—in other words, more servings! I think! See what you can learn, while I'm rambling in the kitchen?

Academy cooking school set Feb. 25

The second annual Diamondhead Academy-sponsored Cooking School and Kitchen tour will be Feb. 25.

According to this year's general chairperson, Lorna Jones, the school will again be taught by Terry Thompson, author of "The Cooking School Cookbook" and internationally known cooking school instructor, restaurant consultant and author.

Jones said the cookbook, a Diamondhead Academy benefit project, sold sufficient numbers to warrant a second printing. Therefore, the money raised by this year's cooking school will be put toward the operating expenses of the academy.

Thompson's cooking demonstration will feature garden salad with baked goat cheese and garlic croutons, sherry wine vinaigrette, galantine of chicken with shiitake mushroom and wine sauce, red bell pepper mousse, peeled and steamed asparagus, food processor french bread and chocolate-chocolate torte with raspberry sauce and chantilly cream.

Four kitchens are scheduled for the tour. They include the kitchens of Mr. and Mrs. Belon Dennis Sr., 334 Puunani Place; Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Fedric, 7726 Moanalua Way; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Howson, 8320 Maunalani Place; and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wakefield, 7826 Maui Circle.

Bay Area Youth Soccer fourth week standings listed

Bay Area Youth Soccer has completed the fourth week of the spring season. After four weeks of league competition, three teams in the Under-8 to Under-12 divisions remain undefeated.

The Under-10 Rotary Falcons, and the Under-8 Sweepers are leading their divisions undefeated and have not been tied by a team. The Under-12 Hurricanes are leading their division with two wins and one tie.

Under-12
In Under-12, Coach Jody Gex's McDonald Realty team has tied the Under-12 leading team, the Hurricanes, by a score of 1-1. The McDonald Realty team is currently in second place.

The Burger King Whoppers tied the Ocean Springs No. 5 team Saturday, 1-1. Joshua Wilson scored the goal. Coach Laurent commended players Michael Sanders, Todd White, Matt Dillenkoffer, John Guy, Ross Atcain and Jeremy Moore.

Under-10
In Under-10 play, Coach Richard Flowers' Rotary Falcons defeated Coach Craig Foster's Bay Rats team by a score of 4-2.

Forwards Jason Chiniche, Paul Campo and David Flowers scored three of the four Falcon goals, and halfback Michael Flowers scored the final goal of the game on a corner-kick.

Oliver Arce was named most improved offensive player for the game and fullback Ben Guy was named best defensive player.

Coach Flowers congratulated all of the Falcons on a hard-fought, well-played game.

Coach Demboski's Jaguars defeated Coach Jerome Lant's Hurricanes by a score of 2-1 in a well-played game by both teams.

Goals for the Jaguars were scored by Justin Boudouin and Cory Ray, with several fine attempts made by Kippy Chamberlain.

The Hurricanes' offense was held to only one point by the good defensive playing of Marc Mortimer, Brandon Everett and Ty McMichael. Coach Demboski congratulated the entire team for their efforts and improved playing.

Under-8
In Under-8 play, Coach Steve Carver's Sweepers defeated Coach Bill Ginn's Wildcats by a score of 8-1. The Wildcats have been the first team to score on the Sweepers this season. Coach Mike Carron's Tornados were defeated by Coach Timmy Kingston's team by a score of 5-1.

Christine Ross' Raiders game against coach Jimmy Rutherford's Stingers was postponed and will be replayed at a later date.

In Sunday afternoon play, an exciting Under-14 match took place. The first league game between Coach Jerry Ross' Excalibur Under-14 boys team and Coach Bernard Tusa's Sidekicks Under-14 boys team ended in a 2-2 tie in a heated, rather fast-paced game.

Throughout much of the game in afternoon play at the Seminary Field, Coach Ross' team lead 2-1, an excellent showing, since the Excalibur team played most of the game with 10 men, one man short of the usual 11.

However, the last few minutes of the game, the Sidekicks managed to score on a penalty-kick resulting in a tie game. This also shows how strong both teams are, and more exciting action can be expected from the two teams.

Tigers rock SSC

By Kanta Haynes
BHS Correspondent

On Friday, Feb. 10, the Bay High Varsity and Junior Varsity took on rival St. Stanislaus in the Tiger Dome with the Varsity rocking the Rock-A-Chaws, 72-56.

The Tigers not only took a 16-point win over the Rocks but also out-rebounded them, 47-26.

With 18 points, 12 rebounds and five blocked shots, the Tigers were led by junior Cedric Walker.

Also shooting high jumpers were junior Alvin Dedeaux with 14 points and seven rebounds and senior Freddie Necaise with 12 points, 13 caroms, five steals and five blocked shots.

Also contributing to the Tigers' rocking attack were Mike Kennedy clenching 10 points, and sophomore David Weems managed nine points.

Chipping in a total of nine points were Will Seymour and Mike Scharp.

"I thought we played a very good game tonight. We had balanced scoring attack, which is what a coach likes to see," stated Head Coach Michael Ladner.

The leading Rock-A-Chaw was Shannon Garrett with 30 points.

In the junior varsity competition the Rock-A-Chaws took a 48-39 victory over the Tigers.

With 16 points the Tigers were led by junior Bruce Jones. Also aiding in the Tigers' scoring attack were sophomores Calvin Thigpen with nine points and James Mayfield with eight points.

Tommy Bergeron tipped in four points and Jason Mayfield tipped a two-pointer for the Tigers' board scoring.

SSC was led by Rock-A-Chaw Galen Smith and Roger Mavey, both with 11 points.

When asked about the success of the ball club, Ladner commented, "We played consistently throughout the game. We haven't been doing this recently, however."

"The big factor tonight was our rebounding. We had a 47-26 advantage," the coach concluded.

The Tigers and Lady Tigers are now competing for a district win where the boys are in fifth place and the girls have maintained a second place status.

Adolescent sports exchange offers travel opportunities

Soccer in Scotland. Basketball in Belgium. Gymnastics in Germany. Swimming in Sweden. Golf in Australia.

Sport For Understanding (SFU), an international nonprofit exchange program, enters its seventh year, offering student athletes from across the country sports travel opportunities with 60 teams visiting more than 17 countries this summer.

Sport For Understanding participants and their volunteer coaches live with host families during their month-long stay, experiencing the country's life firsthand while bettering their sports skills.

Sport participation—training and competition—is usually scheduled daily; the remaining time is spent sight-seeing and learning about the country's culture with the host families.

"Our philosophy and objectives are quite simple," said executive director Dick Willard. "Sport is the most universal medium available for bringing diverse peoples together. But instead of solely focusing on competition, SFU believes the program must be equally balanced between the personal, educational and cooperative aspects of sports."

Through scheduled activities of internationally-mixed training, shared coaches, the exchange of ideas and techniques, jointly experienced social activities and the participation of host families, we believe we can foster a more cooperative world."

Two years ago, SFU offered their first basketball team traveling to Russia. Last year's coach, Randy Hansen of Everett, Wash., shares this experience: "After a game in Moscow, we had dinner with the Soviet players. Our interpreter helped with questions. We sat, talked and laughed for 2½ hours. It was great! I know that was a time that none of us will ever forget."

"Our programs are geared towards the average or recreational athlete," continued Willard, "not for the elite who have already had many opportunities to compete and train internationally." Many SFU teams may compete in regional or national events, as well as observing internationally-famous events such as Wimbledon and the British Open. For instance, this year's soccer teams will have the opportunity to compete in the Stockholm and Norway international soccer cups.

In its seventh year, SFU will organize some 60 teams in more than 20 different sports to travel abroad to destinations in Europe, Asia and the Pacific, and Latin America. All SFU teams are filled on a "first come" basis. To qualify, players must be ages 14-19, be active in their chosen sport, and have a GPA of at least 2.0.

"My game got better as well as my mind," said Richard Brest, Stamford, Conn., a member of the SFU tennis team which traveled to Holland. "We trained well together as a team. It was the best time of my life—a fulfilling, enriching, once-in-a-lifetime experience."

The SFU program is planned and administered by an experenced group of professionals, sports administrators, and international coaches, who are in close contact with sports leaders, host coaches and sports clubs in each nation.

All first-year coaches are required to attend SFU's four-day national coaches workshop, and can earn up to three graduate credits for their participation in the program.

SFU is a program of Youth For Understanding Inc., one of the largest international student exchange organizations. YFU has exchanged more than 130,000 students on year, semester and summer programs in these last 36 years and maintains 13 offices in the U.S. and in 26 countries around the world.

For further information on the wide variety of programs offered, write to Sport For Understanding, Department C-111, 3501 Newark Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20016, or call 1-800-424-3691.

Rocks lose to St. Martin; finish with 19-9 record

On Tuesday evening, the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws fell to the St. Martin Yellow Jackets 65-57 in the 4A District playoffs to end their season with an impressive 19-9 record.

The Rock-A-Chaws had previously beaten the Yellow Jackets twice in district play earlier in the year. SSC won by three points at St. Martin, and soundly beat St. Martin by ten points at SSC.

Tuesday night, however, belonged to St. Martin as they converted 18 of 27 free throw attempts. St. Martin presently owns a 13-16 record.

Shannon Garrett led the Rock-A-Chaw scorers with 16 points, followed by Chad Matthews with 14 points, and Chris Perrone with 11 points.

SSC jumped out to a quick 8-2 lead in the first quarter, but St. Martin started to hit long jump shots from the outside to lead 17-10 at the end of the first quarter. By halftime, the Yellow Jackets owned a 34-18 advantage.

Coach Chuck Genin and his troops regrouped at halftime, and outscored St. Martin 21-12 in the third quarter to close the margin to 39-31. The Rock-A-Chaws pulled even closer in the fourth quarter, and at one point trailed by only four points.

But free throws by St. Martin helped make the difference in the contest as the Yellow Jackets outscored the Rocks 19-18 in the final quarter to take a 65-57 win. This advances St. Martin to the finals against George County.

"St. Martin took advantage of our 1-3-1 zone and really bombed from the outside," said assistant coach Jerry Spell. "They were extremely hot from the perimeter."

"We then switched to a man-to-man defense, and had an effective full court press, but I feel their free throws made were the difference," said Coach Spell.

All-District players were Shannon Garrett (who was also named Most Valuable Defensive Player), Greg Schruoff and Chad Matthews. Garrett and Schruoff are both juniors, and Matthews is a senior.

"St. Martin was ready for us. They couldn't miss from outside," said Garrett. "They really seemed to want to win that game badly."

Point guard Greg Schruoff added, "They were hot from outside. We closed to within a few points late in the game when we went man-to-man in the last quarter."

Finishing the season at 19-9 was the best record the Rock-A-Chaw varsity has had in the past eight years. In 1981, the Rock-A-Chaws had a 19-game winning streak and finished their season 22-3.

Coaches Chuck Genin and Jerry Spell wish to thank all the loyal fans who came out and cheered the Rock-A-Chaws on to victory throughout the season.

Keys to finding bass

and murky.

The second part of Nixon's plan for locating bass is to begin fishing every type of cover he sees. He does not specifically eliminate one type, such as grass, before moving to something else. He fishes grass, stumps, timber or whatever happens to be in his path.

The key here is fishing efficiently. That means using lures designed for the type of cover being worked, and presenting those lures properly. It also means working fast, making short casts and keeping the lure in the water. Most often, Nixon recommends anglers use spinnerbaits or crankbaits when first starting to search for bass because the lures can be fished quickly.

The third step is to concentrate on visible cover, but if there is a lot of it, to key on whatever appears different in that cover.

"Whenever you find one little area better than the rest," says the Evinrude pro, "something will invariably be different about it, even though everything might look alike at first glance."

"When you catch a fish to two from a spot, move on past it, then fish your way back very carefully, looking for that change. More often than not, that change will be on the bottom, such as a small ditch, a dropoff, a mound or hump."

Because being able to find these subtle differences in the bottom is so important, many anglers have a depthfinder mounted on the bow of their boats. They watch them carefully as they cast to the different targets.

To Nixon, a bass pattern is simply the cover and depth bass are using. He considers proper lure choice and lure presentation as refinements of a pattern. When similar conditions exist over a lake, bass will usually be acting the same way in those areas.

"I rarely fish for bass deeper than 10 or 12 feet, except during the hot summer. My favorite depth is between four and 10 feet, where it is easy to work lures and feel strikes," he notes.

Nixon's fourth and final piece of the puzzle is confidence, which he rates as the most important. Having a positive attitude, he feels, determines how efficiently an angler fishes, and how clearly he is able to analyze the different pieces of the puzzle he's trying to solve.

Nixon emphasizes that until an angler knows what the bass are doing it is not necessary to move more than a short distance from a launching area. In the beginning of your search for fish, study a lake map to choose your fishing area, then launch your boat as close to it as possible to save valuable fishing time.

Finding bass is a puzzle every angler faces each time he launches his boat to go fishing. The key to doing it the way the tournament pros do is concentrating on only a small part of the lake, and fishing it as thoroughly and efficiently as possible.

One look at Larry Nixon's professional tournament record of wins and prize money won proves it works.

Bass Tournament to benefit St. Jude

The Memphis Bass Club announces that the Seventeenth Annual St. Jude Open Bass Classic will be held on May 28 at Sardis Lake.

Major sponsors of this year's tournament are: Ranger Boats, Johnson Outboards, Union Planters Bank and Natural Light Beer.

During the past 16 years the tournament has raised over $500,000 for the children at St. Jude, the world's largest catastrophic childhood disease research hospital.

The 1988 tournament attracted 485 fishermen from Alabama, Arkansas, Florida, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, Tennessee and Texas. Last year's tournament raised $52,500 for the children.

The total prize package for the 1989 tournament will exceed $50,000. Natural Light Beer and Union Planters Bank are major contributors to the financial support of this tournament.

The first place finisher will receive a 14' Lowe aluminum boat with a 9.9 H.P. Johnson outboard.

The grand prize boat, a 370 V Ranger with a 150 Johnson G.T. outboard and a custom frame trailer will be awarded to one lucky participant by random drawing at the weigh-in.

Other major sponsors include Kunnan tackle, Berkley-Trilene, Coca-Cola, Shoney's and Delco Voyager batteries. The fisherman with the largest bass will receive $500 courtesy of M. S. Carriers.

The entry fee for this year's tournament will be $60.00 if mailed prior to midnight March 31. After that time, the entry fee will be $75.00. All entries must be received no later than 6 p.m., May 18. Entry forms will soon be available at local tackle stores and marine dealerships throughout the Mid-South. You do not need to own a boat to fish. Non-boaters will be paired with boaters.

Jimmy Dickson, tournament director, promised, "This will be the best St. Jude tournament ever." Invitations to attend have been issued to President George Bush, Memphis Mayor Dick Hackett, Mississippi Senators Trent Lott and Thad Cochran, Tennessee Senators Jim Sasser, Albert Gore and Congressman Don Sundquist.

Additional information can be attained by writing the St. Jude Bass Classic, P.O. Box 12404, Memphis, Tennessee, 38122 or calling (901) 522-9733, extension 114.

One of the factors that continually separates America's top professional bass anglers from more casual fishermen is their ability to locate bass very quickly, even on lakes they may never have fished before.

Larry Nixon, a member of the Evinrude Pro Staff, is one of the best at this, as his tournament record shows. Nixon has the 1983 Bass Masters Classic in his portfolio, along with 11 other national tournament wins, and total winnings of more than $650,000 in 11 years.

Nixon can boil his technique of locating fish down to four easy steps that can be followed by any bass angler on any lake in the nation. Best of all, they're easy to learn.

"The first thing I do," says Nixon, "is choose a particular part of a lake in which to concentrate. This can be a single creek or tributary, or a large bay. This area will have a lot of shallow water around it, because that is where bass spawn, and they won't be far away."

"I specifically like an area that has a lot of four to eight foot depths, which gives plenty of options to the bass."

"My area will also have deep water nearby, which gives me the chance for larger bass. Over the years, I have learned having a shallow-water-deep-water combination is one of the most important factors in bass fishing, and I always make certain I'm fishing near deeper water."

One way of fishing a large flat, according to Nixon, is to work out until it begins breaking up into deeper water, either with small dropoffs, channels, or ditches. Once it does this, an angler can begin looking for cover.

Choosing only a portion of a lake to fish offers several advantages. First, it allows an angler to completely eliminate the rest of the lake. He can concentrate harder, and because the area is smaller, he can cover it faster.

Nixon recommends anglers choose a wide body of water rather than a narrow area, because it will hold more fish. On many lakes, bass will tend to be more shallow in the upper end of the lake because that water is normally more dingy

COUNTY AGENT NOTES

By Lee Taylor

POISONOUS SPIDERS

There are two kinds of poisonous spiders found in Hancock County, the brown recluse and the black widow. These pests can be controlled if you know where to find them.

Brown recluse spiders hide in dark, sheltered areas inside the home. Black widow spiders usually stay outdoors under stones and trash, in wood piles and around houses.

Surface applications of dursban, diazinon or malathion will control these spiders. Follow label directions.

PECANS

Flatheaded apple tree borers may attack newly planted pecan trees in Hancock County. Keep trunks of young trees wrapped with strips of burlap, heavy paper or treated spiral crepe paper.

Wind the material around the trunk from the ground to lower branches. Tie the wrapping with a cord. Remove dead bark from damaged trees and treat the exposed surfaces with pruning paint.

BEEF MANAGEMENT

Watch cows closely during calving season. Catching calving problems early on can mean the difference between a live calf and a dead one.

Try to eartag each calf as soon as possible after birth. This period is also a good time to castrate and install growth stimulant implants.

Check cows after calving. The nutritional requirements of cows practically double during lactation (nursing). Cows must have adequate nutrition if they are to give good milk and later be rebred.

Pay attention to mineral requirements for lactating cows, especially when early grazing becomes available. A mineral imbalance called grass tetany can strike mature, good-milking cows that have recently calved.

FORAGE TIPS

February is a good time for applying nitrogen to cool season grass pastures. Temperatures have usually warmed enough for nitrogen uptake and new plant growth.

As temperatures warm, graze off any frosted top growth before you apply nitrogen. Then apply nitrogen, either as ammonium nitrate or as a formulation containing urea. The 45 percent granular urea works well for most pastures because the granules readily dissolve and move into the soil with rain.

LOCAL BRIEF

ASCS OFFICE

Franklin A. Gennin, county executive director of the Pearl River-Hancock County ASCS Office reminds producers to report any changes in their farm operations which could affect farm program benefit in 1989.

"To assure that producers get full program benefits, farm records must be current," said Gennin. "Producers should contact our office if there has been a change in the land owned or operated, if a farm will have a new owner effective for 1989, or if a change is made in the operation of an existing farm unit."

Hall crowned NAACP Mother of the Year

The 10th Annual Mother of the Year Supper Theater was held at the Gulfside Assembly Center in Waveland on Jan. 21.

This proved to be lucky for the Waveland residents, as their contestants had never won Mother of the Year honors. The three churches in competition for the 1989 title were St. Rock Methodist, Valena C. Jones Methodist and First Missionary Baptist Church.

A well-rounded program began to unfold with the outgoing president of NAACP Hancock County Branch Marilyn Smith delivering the opening remarks.

The Reverend Bobby E. Dailley, Valena C. Jones/St. Rock Methodist churches offered the first reading from scripture and the Reverend William Harper, First Missionary Baptist Church led the invocation.

A local celebrity in his own right, William E. Thrasher Jr., co-owner of WBSL Radio delivered the greetings.

Dinner was served, followed by musical tribute to Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. All songs were performed by vocalists Messrs. Robert Weaver and Phillip Williams, both members of St. Rose de Lima choir.

The Reverend Wendall Taylor, acting director of Gulfside Assembly Center, delivered the main address. Guests in attendance included Mayor Victor Frankiewicz of Bay St. Louis, Natalie Bell, WLOX-TV, Channel 13, Biloxi, and Kat Fitzgerald, an artist of regional acclaim.

All attendees thoroughly enjoyed the speakers, the dinner and the musical tribute, but they all came to see the 1989 NAACP Mother of the Year.

All contestants, Mmes. Connie Payne, VCJ Methodist; Mary Hall, St. Rock Methodist; and Carrie Herrington, First Missionary Baptist, conducted fund raising drives that would hopefully propel one of them to the Mother of the Year title.

In reverse order the third runner-up was Ms. Herrington, second place, in a close race was Ms. Payne. The 1989 Mother of the Year, crowned by the 1988 titleholder, Ms. Sarah Middleton, was Ms. Mary Lee Hall.

Upon adorning the crown and receiving the customary bouquet of long-stemmed roses, Ms. Hall shed tears of joy. She promenaded around the auditorium escorted by her oldest son Eugene. They marched, smiled and waved to a thunderous ovation from the audience.

St. Rock Methodist has a congregation of approximately 30 members. Ms. Hall said, "I was determined to win because in ten years, Waveland had never won. I made up my mind that I could help put Waveland back on the map."

When asked what kind of message was she sending to the youth of her community she said, "It was hard for me as a young person to make it in life, but if I could represent myself in this way, then they should look ahead with pride, go forward and create a positive life for themselves. This is the happiest day of my life."

Ms. Hall extended special thanks to her husband, Clarence, her children, Eugene, 28, Clarence, 13, Amanda, 10, Tracy, 7, the members of St. Rock, the business community, friends and patrons who supported her and to the NAACP for giving her the opportunity to represent the organization during 1989.

LOCAL BRIEF

Hancock Medical Center is beginning a new Prepared Childbirth Class for all parents-to-be. Free and open to the public, these classes are taught by Janet Polozola, HMC's childbirth educator.

The three-week course will meet in Hancock Medical Center's classroom from 7 p.m. to 9 p.m. on Monday nights.

The classes cover general prenatal topics including films and lectures on breathing and relaxation, what to expect from pregnancy, the birth process, and decisions for feeding babies. It is recommended that both parents attend the classes.

Reservations are required, as seating space will be limited. Registering early in pregnancy will help ensure a place in class and allow sufficient time to prepare before the baby's birth.

Volunteer counselors, trained by the Internal Revenue Service, will fill out the various forms and explain special benefits for older citizens.

Bring copies of your 1989 income tax returns and forms and materials for this year. Tax-Aide is a public service program of the American Association of Retired Persons in cooperation with the IRS.

For more information about the classes or to make reservations, call Hancock Medical Center at 467-9081 ext. 2330.

Students design St. Clare School coat of arms

In preparation for Catholic School Week, fourth through eighth graders at St. Clare Elementary were asked to design a coat of arms to represent the school.

From the submitted works, five logos were chosen to be incorporated into the St. Clare Coat of Arms, which now hangs in the hall of the school.

The St. Clare Coat of Arms consists of a shield of gold. Centered upon the shield, dividing it into four squares, is a Dominican Cross, a tribute to the Dominican Sisters who staff and administer the school.

Depicted in the upper left square is a lighthouse, taken from the coat of arms of the Diocese of Biloxi, representing Christ, the Light of the World, a beacon of truth and peace shining through the darkness.

The upper right square is split diagonally by an Indian spear, an emblem of the school's mascot name, the St. Clare Warriors.

The area above the spear contains a white dove in flight, symbolizing the Holy Spirit, the Bringer of Faith. Below the spear is a blue crescent and twelve stars representing Mary, the Mother of God and patroness of children.

In the lower left square is a red Indian in full headdress, the school logo, which appears on several articles of the school uniform. The school's initials, SCS, in red, appear next to the Indian.

The square to the lower right represents the lamp of knowledge resting on two books, symbolizing scholarly pursuit.

Peoples, McKay attend mid-winter library conference

More than 400 library personnel and library trustees from across the state attended the recent Legislature Day and National Library Week Mid-Winter Conference held in Jackson and sponsored by the Mississippi Library Association.

Representing the Hancock County Library System were Karen Peoples and Linda McKay.

Participants attended committee meetings and numerous National Library Week activities workshops during the morning sessions of the conference.

Speaker for the annual luncheon was Rebecca Hood-Adams of the Clarion Ledger, who spoke on the important role public libraries have played in her career as a journalist.

Following an afternoon briefing on library-related legislation, participants visited the Capitol and then attended a reception in honor of Mississippi legislators held at the Eudora Welty Library in Jackson. National Library Week is held each year during the second week in April to focus attention on the important role that public, school, academic, and special libraries play in the lives of people across the United States.

Mississippi official flag rediscovered in library

By Joe Pilet, Scribe
Friendship Oak DAR

Guess what happened to me Tuesday when I was on my way to turn in a bit of copy for the Sea Coast Echo. A brief article calling attention to February as National History Month sponsored by the National Society Daughters of the American Revolution.

The point I hoped to make was that few of us recall our Mississippi history very accurately and a review might be of interest. I had asked a few friends if they remember what our first official flag looked like and if they would tell me the words or hum the tune of our official song.

Would you believe it—nobody knew? But, I did get a lot of suggestions. One lady suggested that I might consult Leo Seal because he was a member of the Sons of the American Revolution. When I asked a person I had always regarded as a 'walking encyclopedia' if she could remember the words of a song called 'The Bonnie Blue Flag,' she admitted that she never heard of it. But she said perhaps it could be found in a very old and out-of-print song book. That proved to be a rather good suggestion.

I decided not to go to the Echo after all. I put the copy in the nearest dumpster and felt a bit discouraged. Had we perhaps waited too long to record a romantic bit of Mississippi's colorful history? Anyway, I was comforted by the knowledge that our children are taught to respect our flag as it stand for our country's land, its people, its government and our ideals. It is a symbol of our inheritance and our freedom. I decided to go back to my office and look up a few more references. It's a good thing I did!

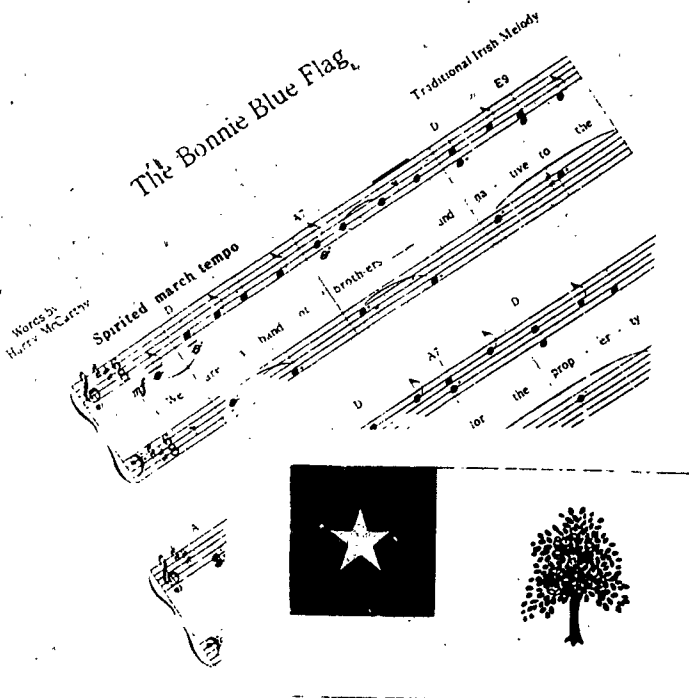

The phone was ringing when I opened the door, and a pleasant voice announced that the caller was none other than Mary Leigh Weston of our City-County Library. She could give me the words—the music—and the history of our first official song called 'The Bonnie Blue Flag' written in honor of our first official flag which is also known as the Mississippi Magnolia Flag.

In the library I had much to learn and came away with a copy of the song which should be sung "in spirited march tempo." The song has three verses, and a chorus that goes, "Hurrah! Hurrah! for the Bonnie Blue Flag that bears a single star." The tune is a traditional Irish Melody and the words are by Harry McCarthy. I can now tell with authority that the Magnolia Flag (Bonnie Blue Flag) was the state's flag until 1894 when it was superseded by the present Mississippi flag. In Cyril E. Cain's book 'Flags Over Mississippi' is a vivid description of the flag:

"A flag of white ground, a Magnolia tree in the center, a blue field in the upper left hand corner with a white star in its center. The flag to be finished with a red border and a red fringe at the extremity of the flag."

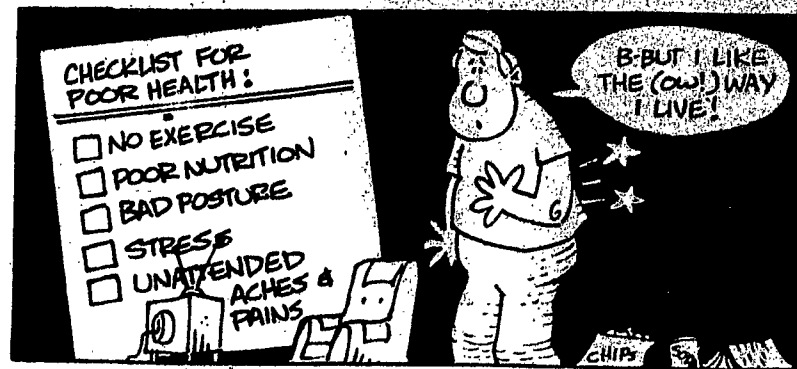

So hurrah for the Bonnie Blue Flag and our current Mississippi State Flag and the message that these flying colors bring.

Mississippi's Magnolia Flag.

Marsalis to perform at USM Feb. 28

One of America's best-known young jazz musicians will be featured in the next University of Southern Mississippi University Forum event Feb. 28 on the USM campus.

Wynton Marsalis, a 27-year-old trumpeter known for his ease in playing music from classical to jazz — will appear at 7 p.m. in Bennett Auditorium.

"I studied classical music because so many young musicians were scared of this big monster called classical music on the other side of the mountain," Marsalis said in a promotional piece issued by Greater Talent Network, Inc. "I went into it and found it wasn't anything but some more music."

"But as far as both musical idioms are concerned," he added, "I know it's harder to be a good jazz musician at an early age than a classical one. In jazz, to be a good performer means to be an individual, which you don't have to be in classical music."

Marsalis's early musical influence came from his hometown of New Orleans and his musical family, including his father Ellis and brother Branford. At the age of 6, he received his first trumpet from Al Hirt, but did not take the instrument seriously until his classical studies began when he was 12 years old.

Marsalis first played trumpet with the New Orleans Civic Orchestra throughout his high school years. He studied at Tanglewood at the age of 17, and entered the Juilliard School of Music the next year.

Since that time, he has played with most of the world's respected jazz musicians — including Art Blakey and the Jazz Messengers, and the Herbie Hancock Quartet.

In 1982, he released his first two albums, "Wynton Marsalis," and later that year, "Fathers and Sons," a project featuring the three Marsalises and Chico and Von Freeman.

Marsalis then began a cross-country tour of the United States, which eventually grew into several international tours, including trips to Europe and Japan.

In 1983, Marsalis simultaneously released a jazz album, "Think of One," and his classical debut, "Hydn/Hummet/L. Mozart Trumpet Concertos."

For his efforts, he became the first instrumentalist to win back-to-back awards in jazz and classical music at the 1984 Grammy Awards ceremony — a feat he repeated in 1985 for his work on "Hot House Flowers" and for his work on his second Masterworks album, "Handel, Purcell, Torelli, Frasc, Molter."

In 1986, Marsalis won his third consecutive Grammy soloist award for his 1985 album, "Black Codes (From the Underground)."

During his young and prolific career, Marsalis has been featured in Time, Life and People magazines, and has been interviewed on the NBC, CBS and ABC television networks.

A limited number of free tickets for the USM Marsalis performance will be distributed — as long as they last — beginning Feb. 20 at the Performing Arts Center Box Office on the USM campus. Box office hours will be 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

For more information, contact the USM Honors College at Southern Station Box 5162, Hattiesburg, Miss. 39406-5162, or call (1) 266-4533.

USM school aids children with hearing problems

The School For Children with Impaired Hearing at the University of Southern Mississippi has received more than $66,000 in state funds to meet the unique educational needs of children with hearing problems.

The school qualifies for state Department of Education money for salaries, supplies and administration. These minimum funds are used to teach sign language and lip-reading, and to improve listening skills.

"The children we work with range in age from three to 15," said Linda Cubley, director of the school. "These kids are of normal intelligence, but many times we find that they have not had a chance to develop because of their hearing impairment."

Hearing-impaired children are admitted to the program if their school does not have a similar program, said Cubley. Presently children from Stone, Green, Marion, Jones and Forrest counties are enrolled. "We know there are children out there who need this kind of training and are not getting it," said the director.

With proper training, a hearing-impaired child who might otherwise be employed as a menial laborer, could advance to a special junior college or technical school, she noted. For more information about the school, call Linda Cubley at 266-5225.

Skin cancer: the most common form

Skin cancer is the most common form of cancer. Fortunately, it is the easiest to cure. Today, 95 percent of skin cancer patients are free of their disease following medically approved treatment. Scientists believe this rate will increase to 98 or even 100 percent when patients seek medical attention early enough.

Skin cancer is related to all other forms of cancer by one common characteristic: uncontrolled growth which can metastasize, or spread, to other tissues and organs of the body. This type of growth is also referred to as malignant, which means threatening to life. Another type of abnormal growth which does not invade or spread, and usually does not endanger life, is called benign.

Skin Malignancies
Basal cell cancer occurs more frequently and grows more slowly. It rarely metastasizes, but if left untreated, it can extend to the underlying bone. Squamous cell cancer occurs much less frequently, but is a greater hazard, because it metastasizes more often.

Basal and squamous cell cancers can appear in almost any area of the skin. The exposed parts of the body—face, neck, forearms, and backs of the hands—are the most common sites for skin cancer growth.

From outward appearance, it is often not possible to distinguish between the two types of skin cancer; in some cases they even resemble benign growths. In general, skin cancer is characterized by a pale, waxy, pearly nodule which may eventually ulcerate and crust, or by a red, scaly, sharply outlined patch.

The Precancers
Certain abnormal nonmalignant skin conditions which tend to become malignant are called precancers. The most common of these is senile or actinic keratosis.

Keratosis is a scaly skin thickening which develops in a small area, usually on the face, neck, and hands.

Senile or actinic keratosis usually develops in older persons on the exposed parts of the body.

A condition which occurs on the lip, the tongue, or in the mouth is leukoplakia. Resembling keratosis, leukoplakia develops as a white thickening. It frequently occurs in heavy pipe smokers and tobacco chewers.

Other Malignancies

Two relatively uncommon malignant conditions which can appear in the skin are malignant melanoma and mycosis fungoides. These are not strictly classified as skin cancer because they are not confined to the skin.

Malignant melanoma is usually characterized by its dark brown or black appearance although some lesions may lack pigment.

It occurs as a small, mole-like growth that increases in size, may become ulcerated and may bleed easily upon slight injury.

It can arise from a preexisting mole, although some melanomas do not. Studies indicate that the incidence of melanoma varies with geography as well as race.

For example, the incidence of melanoma is more common among white persons than blacks, and more common among whites who live close to the Equator than among those living in temperate zones. Near the Equator, even young persons may be affected.

Malignant melanoma metastasizes quickly and can involve many organs. This fact accounts for the lower five-year relative survival rate for patients with this disease—80 percent compared with 95 percent for patients with other kinds of skin cancer. Early diagnosis and treatment are essential, so any change in a mole-like growth should promptly be brought to the attention of a physician.

Mycosis fungoides is marked by the development of reddish plaque-like tumors on the skin which have a tendency to spread and ulcerate. It may originate in preexisting chronic, benign, inflammatory skin disorders. Although the disease usually remains confined to the skin for periods of years, it eventually spreads to involve internal organs.

Because its manifestations may arise simultaneously in many different areas of the skin, mycosis fungoides is thought to be related to Hodgkin's disease and leukemia, two other systemic cancers which affect the lymph and blood systems. However, mycosis fungoides has a tendency to remain confined to the skin for long periods of time, unlike Hodgkin's disease and leukemia which spread rapidly if untreated.

Detection and Diagnosis
Only a physician can determine the nature of an abnormal skin growth—whether it is benign, precancerous, or malignant. An individual should bring any skin change to the attention of his physician.

The doctor diagnoses a suspected malignant skin condition on the basis of a laboratory test known as a biopsy. In a biopsy, a fragment of the suspected tissue is removed surgically, especially prepared, and examined under a microscope.

If the suspicious growth is small enough, the physician will probably remove it entirely for examination by a pathologist, a medical specialist who diagnoses disease by studying the appearance of tissues and cells under the microscope.

Causes

The sun is the leading cause of skin cancer. Other less common causes are coal tar, pitch, arsenic compounds, paraffin oil, radium and X-rays.

Anyone may develop skin cancer. However, it occurs most often in people who have fair, ruddy, or sandy complexions and are exposed to a great amount of sun.

People with fair complexions are probably more susceptible to skin cancer because their skin lacks sufficient quantities of the pigment substance, melanin, which filters out the harmful rays of the sun.

The presence of melanin also determines the varying intensity of brown of different skins; the darker brown the skin, the greater the amount of melanin.

Blacks, among whom skin cancer is rare, have sufficient melanin to protect their skin from ultraviolet irritation; the albino has none.

Cancer facts for women

Breast Cancer

Breast cancer is one of the leading cancer killers among women in this country with 38,400 deaths each year. The number of new cases is approximately 119,000. However, through early detection and prompt treatment, about 87 percent of breast cancer patients could be saved.

About one out of 11 women will develop breast cancer at some time during their lives. That's why a monthly breast self-examination should be a lifelong habit from teenage years on, even though this disease occurs most often in women over 50.

If you're age 50 and over, you should have a breast X ray (mammogram) every year; between ages 35-39, have a baseline breast X ray; from ages 40 to 49, you should have this X ray every one to two years depending on your physician's judgment.

It is also important to have a physician examine your breasts every three years from ages 20 to 40, and every year after 40. You could be at risk for breast cancer if you have a personal or family history of this cancer, have never had children or had your first child after age 30.

At any time, if you find a lump, nipple discharge, or other changes in your breasts, see your physician without delay.

Lung Cancer

Lung cancer is the number one cancer killer of American women with about 38,600 deaths each year. Yet nearly half of these deaths could be prevented if women did not smoke. Cigarette smoking is the largest single, preventable cause of death and disability in this country.

Smoking accounts for nearly 75 percent of lung cancers among women in this county, and for about 10 percent of all cancer in women.

Women who smoke one or more packs of cigarettes a day have a risk of dying from this cancer almost five times as great as a nonsmoker's since the chest X ray as a routine screening procedure, and other tests do not detect lung cancer early enough, prevention is the best step to take.

Don't smoke. No cigarette is "safe," thought switching to low tar and nicotine cigarettes may help if you can't quit yet—provided you don't smoke more of them. Quitting completely lowers your risk, over time, almost to that of nonsmokers as long as no irreversible disease is already present.

American Institute for Research offers 1989 health tips calendar

We all know how to use a calendar to find the date, but now there's a calendar that might also help us stay healthier.

The American Institute for Cancer Research has announced the availability of its free health tips calendar, 'Horizons for Health '89.' This colorful calendar features entertaining, cartoon-style art and a variety of short informative tips for better health in 1989.

Offering easy-to-follow advice on such subjects as lowering fat in favorite foods, tips for better gardening and home-canning, hints on selecting the best vegetables and fruits, suggestions for interesting health-related gifts, and some tasty, nutritious recipes, this calendar provides a broad selection of information for a healthy new year.

While there is no charge for the calendar, the institute is requesting donations, when possible, to help defray expenses. All proceeds go to further the institute's programs in cancer research and cancer education.

Copies of the calendar are available by writing to the American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. Cal89, Washington, D.C. 20069. Donation checks may be made payable to "AICR."

the number of new cases (52,000) but deaths (under 10,000) have dropped sharply over the years, mostly because of the Pap test, which helps detect cancer of the uterine cervix early. The five-year relative survival rate is over 85 percent with early detection.

Every woman should have a Pap test at least once every three years, after two initial negative tests one year apart, from age 20 on (earlier if sexually active). Also from 20 years on, women should have a pelvic exam every three years, and yearly after age 40.

Endometrial cancer, in the lining of body of the uterus, occurs mainly in women over 40. You could be at risk for this cancer if you are obese, take hormones, or have abnormal bleeding, infertility or failure of ovulation. If you have reached menopause and are at risk, your physician should examine an endometrial tissue sample.

Any abnormal uterine bleeding should always be reported promptly to your physician.

Colon and Rectum Cancer

Colorectal cancer is the third major cancer in annual deaths (30,900) and second in new cases (72,000). It occurs slightly more often in women than men and mostly in women over age 50.

Three out of four of these cancer patients could be saved with early detection.

Three effective early detection tests are: 1) the digital rectal exam, which should be part of your yearly health checkup after age 40; 2) the stool blood test every year after age 50; 3) the procto, after age 50, every three to five years following two negative tests one year apart.

Only your physician can assess your risk level and whether you need to have any of these tests earlier or more often. Risks include personal or family history of colon and rectum cancer, personal or family history of polyps in the colon or rectum and ulcerative colitis.

Symptoms such as bleeding from the rectum, blood in the stool, persistent change in bowel habits, or cramping abdominal pain should be reported to your physician without delay.

What is cancer?

Cancer is a group of diseases. There are more than 100 different types of cancer, including several different forms of breast cancer, but they all have one thing in common—the abnormal growth of cells that destroy body tissue rather than build and repair it.

Healthy cells that make up the body's tissues grow, divide, and replace themselves in an orderly manner. This process keeps the body in good repair. Sometimes, however, certain cells lose the ability to limit and direct their growth. They divide too rapidly and grow without any order. Too much tissue is produced, and tumors begin to form. Tumors can be benign or malignant.

* Benign tumors are not cancer. They do not spread to other parts of the body and are seldom a threat to life. Often, benign tumors can be removed by surgery, and they are not likely to return.

* Malignant tumors are cancer. They can invade and destroy nearby healthy tissues and organs. Also, by entering the bloodstream or the lymphatic system, cancer cells can metastasize (spread) to other parts of the body, forming new tumors. Even if a cancerous tumor is removed, the disease sometimes recurs because cancer cells already may have spread.

Because cancer can spread, it is important for the doctor to find out as early as possible if a tumor is present and whether it is benign or malignant. As soon as a diagnosis of cancer is made, the doctor can begin treatment to control the disease.

IN BRIEF

Doctors and researchers have been finding that patients who eat well during their treatment periods—especially those who eat diets high in protein and calories—are better able to stand the side effects of the treatments, be they chemotherapy, radiation therapy, surgery or immunotherapy. Those who eat well may even be able to withstand a higher dose of certain treatments.

When you eat less, for whatever cause, your body uses its own stored up fat, protein and other nutrients, such as iron. Most cancer patients lose weight because they do not eat as much food as their body needs. Some patients do not eat because they are depressed. The disease or the treatments may reduce their appetites or unpleasant side effects of the treatment may cause them to eat less.

You have probably heard about a high fiber, low fat diet to help reduce the risk of getting certain types of cancer. Both the National Cancer Institute (NCI) and the American Cancer Society (ACS) have recommended this diet.

Cancer patients sought for UMC research

The University of Mississippi Medical Center is presently recruiting patient volunteers suffering with bladder cancer and nonHodgkin's lymphoma for two major national studies funded by the National Cancer Institute.

Dr. Francis S. Morrison, professor of medicine at UMC, is part of a nationwide network of investigators conducting clinical cal trials to find ways to improve treatment of these and other cancers.

The studies are designated as high priority because it is believed that the results may have a significant impact on survival of patients with these common cancers. About 46,000 Americans will be diagnosed with bladder cancer this year and another 29,900 will be diagnosed with nonHodgkin's lymphoma.

Clinical trials are studies conducted with cancer patients, usually to evaluate a new treatment. Each clinical trial is designed to answer important medical questions and to find new and better ways to help cancer patients.

For many cancer patients, clinical trials are a treatment option that they should discuss with their physician. Additional information on clinical trials may be obtained by calling the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER.

Those patients interested in participating in the study at UMC should contact Dr. Morrison at 1-984-5615.

FreshStart helps smokers kick the habit

FreshStart is a straightforward, no-nonsense quit smoking program. It consists of four one-hour sessions held during a two-week period.

About 12 to 15 persons form each quit smoking group and are led by a trained ex-smoker through the four sessions.

FreshStart contains all the elements that can help smokers to stop and actually stay off cigarettes. FreshStart can help you now. Here are some points to consider.

Why Quit Now?

First, you know that smoking means health risks, not only lung cancer. Smoking is the leading cause of many forms of cancer and of emphysema. It's also the major cause of premature death from coronary heart disease.

You, personally, are at especially high risk if you are a heavy smoker.

FreshStart is designed to help you stop smoking in just two weeks. The program doesn't contain any non-essential elements.

There are no gimmicks, meaningless activities or busywork.

The four group meetings you attend will be conducted as work sessions. The needs of individual smokers are to be given more attention than the group process.

Your FreshStart facilitator will begin each meeting by asking for questions or individual reactions that participants wish to discuss. Information and strategies will be presented in your very own FreshStart kit that you will be able to review at home. At the conclusion of each session there will be a question and answer period.

IN BRIEF

A balanced diet can help maintain your strength, can prevent body tissues from breaking down and can help rebuild the normal tissues that have been affected by the treatments.

For information about FreshStart call the American Cancer Society at 896-7024.

The Slidell Radiation Center adds the third dimension to cancer treatment in the community.

Located on the campus of Slidell Memorial Hospital, the new Slidell Radiation Center is the first facility of its kind in this area. The Radiation Center offers close to home, high-quality technical capabilities for cancer treatment to residents of Slidell, the surrounding communities, and the Mississippi Gulf Coast.

Radiation as a cancer treatment is used as a primary treatment mode or in conjunction with surgery and chemotherapy. With the opening of the Slidell Radiation Center, the three current cancer treatment methods are now available through the combined efforts of area radiation oncologists, physicians, surgeons, medical oncologists, and the Slidell Memorial Hospital Cancer Care Center.

For more information about the Slidell Radiation Center, call Linda Manning at 649-8688.
